

OUTLAWS FALL HARD ON THE CRIPPLED WHITE SOX 20 TO 9

Fearful Fusillade in Fifth Drives Sutherland from Box; Hole in Infield Responsible for Most of Sox Misplays

By Lyle Abbott

Nobody can say we are not for baseball. After what happened to us yesterday on the Polo street lot, we can qualify as one of the nationally great supporters of the game.

Sam Haddiman lost his shortstop during the late morning hours and couldn't find anybody to lug the malingering hole in his infield, the hole through which the Outlaws sneaked most of their runs in the fifth inning. Also, Sam's starting hurler, Sutherland, regressed his arm away during the first few frames, and the bandits got such a lead that it was no use. The final tally was 20 to 9, and that figure tells begins to give a glimmering of the idea.

It started out like most baseball games. Up to the fifth inning, it promised to be the usual slugging match, between pretty well hitting amateur teams, with nothing to speak of in the pitching line. There were flashes of decent fielding, especially when Vic Benvenuto caught Dummore out in the first and pegged McGuffin off first base, and when E. Cooper on third picked up Dummore's hurt in the fifth and snapped Bagley out at the plate.

Sutherland hadn't much left when the Outlaws descended on him in the fifth. He had submitted to a fair slugging in the fourth, when the Bradstreet acquired four runs, but that was nothing to the slaughter he endured in the immediately subsequent set of events. They battered all the way around once, and then half way again. By that time, we were beseeching every batter to make an out, as we had no more room to put down hits and runs. Fourteen men faced Sutherland and he fell in that frame. Dick went in with one down, after six runs had been scored on six hits and an error. Then the Outlaws bled in the two runners on base and tapped Dick for three more hits, assessing five additional lilies.

The following are the statistics:

CHUGBICKERS OF TWO CITIES CONVERGE

Twenty motorcyclists of this city moved on Florence in a long and dusty line yesterday, and at the prison town met 16 riders from Tucson.

Lunching was had at the state prison, which was inspected.

Most of the riders went solo, but there were six tandems in the Tucson crowd and several out of Phoenix. Two of the Phoenix tandems got only as far as Mesa, however.

Jim Clyde Gaines, state commissioner of the Federation of American Motorcyclists went along in his roadster having asserted the trust two-wheeler in his old age. He saw that nobody but left out on the desert, and also that several of the riders learned the taste of alkali dust. So few Phoenix riders savvy the lingo, "shiny," Charles Fuller Gates, a magazine writer, was one of the motorcyclists. He was much interested in the tour, road conditions, etc., and at the prison, visited with Louis V. Eytine, publisher of a magazine on advertising and an advertising expert.

ATTAWAY PITCHES FINE BALL; MESA WINS FROM TEMPE

With Bases Loaded, Price, Fitzgerald and Bond, Pull Blazing Double, Ending Battle.

(Special to The Republican)

MESA, May 14.—Mesa won its ball game from Tempe today by a score of 8 to 2, and added the second victory of the season to its list. From the first inning Red Attaway pitched sterling ball and through the eight innings that he lasted he allowed but four scattered bingles. Nevitt, on the mound for the Bears, was touched for ten hits, coupled with the errors by his team mates, gave the locals an easy victory.

Tempe opened the scoring in the first inning and put two runs across. Mesa scored one in the first, scored three in the fourth and in the sixth added up four more, which gave them a safe margin. In the eighth the visitors assailed Attaway, scored one run, filled the bases and then were retired on a pretty double play by Price to Fitzgerald to Bond.

YANKEE PUGS HAVE LITTLE TROUBLE IN ARRANGING FIGHTS

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]

NEW YORK, May 14.—American pugilists are in demand both at home and abroad these days and he is a poor boxer who cannot find opportunity to enter the ring for a purse or gate percentage far in excess of the amounts offered to the fighters of a generation ago. Both South American and Australia are bidding for the best of the American ringmen at present, and in view of the sums that are being held out as inducements, it is likely that there will be quite an exodus of boxers during the next few months.

Official representatives of the Argentine republic are at present in New York City trying to sign men for at least four bouts including feather, weights, lightweights, middleweights and heavyweights. With the aid of local promoters it appears likely that they will be able to secure several high class bouts, especially since they are willing to pay both expenses for traveling and training. In addition to the boxers who will be signed for one trip, several wrestlers will be offered an opportunity to show their skill in Argentine.

The representatives of the South American republic report that the natives of the Argentine are greatly interested in all forms of sport both from the standpoint of spectators and participants. Soccer football, tennis, polo and baseball all have their followers and these games are rapidly growing in popularity. Boxing and wrestling is as yet rather a novelty, but large gatherings of spectators have appeared at the few bouts held and there is a growing demand for more contests of this type.

Australian promoters, through their American agents, are also offering excellent inducements for pugilists who will make the trip to the Island Continent but to date the stars of fistiana have shown little disposition to embark upon the long voyage to "The Down Under." Various reasons are advanced for this disinclination to go to Australia. The unsettled conditions due to the war is one and the peculiar effect of the climate on American pugilists is another. One side of Les Dorey, the average Australian boxer is not particularly feared by American pugilists and pursues are inviting. Nevertheless promoters are finding it more difficult to sign boxers for Australian bouts than for similar contests in South America.

The historic Childs cup for which the University of Pennsylvania and the United States Naval Academy, which was raised in a special race at the American Henley last Saturday, May 12, has been in competition since 1878. During this period eleven races for the trophy have been held with the result that Pennsylvania crews have won four times, Columbia three, Princeton twice and Cornell twice.

Further accounts of the great inter-collegiate rowing tournament held in Japan earlier in the year in which Allen Smith, a Scotchman won the "Black Belt" one of the principal prizes offered annually, give an interesting idea of the manner in which the famous "jude" competition is staged. The contests on the big match days in the Tokyo academy are conducted along the lines of the old-fashioned spelling match in the American country school house.

All around the big wrestling hall runs a line of open tags bearing the names of the students who will compete. The contestants are divided into tag teams. The first man on the

BASEBALL REVIEW

[Republican A. P. Leased Wire]

NEW YORK, May 14.—The first inter-sectional clash of the 1916 season in the National and American leagues resulted in favor of the eastern clubs, including Saturday, the eastern teams had won twenty games from the west and lost fifteen to them. In the National league, the east won nine and the west six; in the American, the east won eleven and the west nine.

There were no changes of importance in the league standings during the week. Cleveland and Washington continued their winning gallop in the American league. Brooklyn and Boston, the National league leaders, did not do as well, but managed to retain their places.

The feature of the week in the National league was the winning of four straight games by New York from Pittsburg. The Giants had won only two games up to the time of their only victory of the west. The pitcher of McGraw's corps was better and the fielding improved, but the batting of Burns, Robertson and Doyle was the biggest factor in the four victories from the Pirates.

Brooklyn lost two of its four games by one run, and one of them after thirteen innings. The batting of Robinson's men was not up to its good work, due to some steady work on the mound and opportune hitting.

The heavy hitting of Zimmerman and Williams was the outstanding point of Chicago's play. Philadelphia faltered in the field and failed to improve its standing. The champions seemed to have lost their scoring power. Cincinnati showed a complete reversal of the previous week's form.

New York and St. Louis each won four games and lost one. The Giants and the Cardinals broached in all departments. Anderson, the former Federal star, with the Giants, held Pittsburg to three hits on Friday. Mathewson also pitched better on his second appearance.

In the American league, Philadelphia and Detroit in their series at Philadelphia gave an unusual exhibi-

RIFLE CLUB TO BE MADE OVER

New Rifles Will Be Asked for by Officers for New Members: Meeting Tonight at Armory of All Who Are Interested

Anticipating the receipt of many new members into the Phoenix Rifle club, which is to be reorganized at a public meeting in the armory at eight o'clock tonight, Dr. L. Budo will ask that a requisition for at least thirty new Springfield be sent in as one of the first acts of the new officers.

Dr. Budo is president of the club and with Treasurer Roy Goodrich, is the only representative of the official family left, now that the mobilized national guard has called others into active service.

While non-military in its character and obligations, the Phoenix Rifle club has formed a sort of pre-school for many young officers and privates. It has been working for into the most efficient shooting organization of the United States, and is noted for its victories on the range. Only once has it been defeated in a match of any consequence.

The object of the reorganization is to secure new members to fill up the gaps left by the departing guardsmen. It is also the aim of the organization to teach as many civilians as possible, how to shoot the high powered army rifle. There is a vast difference between handling a thirty caliber and a Springfield, and no one who has not had some practice with the service arm, can imagine just how beautifully it shoots in comparison with the comparatively low velocity hunting models.

The club is affiliated with the National Rifle association and its members are the only civilians in Phoenix, outside of the newly formed Fortification rifle club, who will be able to secure army rifles.
